

QUESTION 2 (10 MARKS)

Use each of the following data following correct statistical conventions.

- 1. Frequency table that lists all the categories of variable and the number of observations in each category.
- 2. Contingency table - Organized data in a table with 2 rows and 2 columns. The rows represent the categories of one variable and the columns represent the categories of another variable.
- 3. Chi-Square Test - A statistical test used to determine if there is a significant association between two categorical variables. It is based on the idea that the observed frequencies of the categories should be similar to the expected frequencies if there is no association.
- 4. Expected frequencies - The frequencies that we would expect to see in each cell of a contingency table if there is no association between the variables.
- 5. Chi-Square Statistic - A measure of the difference between the observed and expected frequencies. It is calculated as the sum of the squared differences between the observed and expected frequencies, divided by the expected frequencies.
- 6. Chi-Square Distribution - A probability distribution that is used to determine the significance of the Chi-Square Statistic. It is a right-skewed distribution that is defined by its degrees of freedom.
- 7. Chi-Square Test Result - A statement of whether there is a significant association between the variables. It is based on the Chi-Square Statistic and the Chi-Square Distribution.
