

How To Write a D-B-Q

Use your thesis and as a jumping off point to merge together documents and outside info.

Some Rules and Regulations

1. Be sure to answer the question that is being asked!
2. Cite, Cite, Cite! If you use a document, cite it! Also as you cite, be consistent and use the same style throughout the course of your essay.
3. Include outside information- this is very important for a DBQ, your using the documents to thread knowledge you already have, so be sure to include some outside facts or things you've learned in class into your essay.
4. Make sure your outside information is relevant to the topic!
5. When you refer to a document , explain it! How does this support your argument? Who is it written by? Why is it significant?
6. Remember: DBQ does not mean to just explain the documents your viewing! You need to use those documents to prove your argument.

When looking at a document think about....

- What is the authors P.O.V. (Point of View)
- Where is the origin of the document?
- Is the document valid or hearsay?
- If age or gender were changed do you think the person would be saying the same thing?
- If we know the document is saying something that today we find morally/legally wrong, then why is it going on?
