Introduction

- 1. We use titration
- 2. to determine the concentration of acids/bases. It is defined as the vol. of a known volume of a substance of known concentration and vol. of a substance of unknown concentration.

Neutral titration

- 1. For a strong acid titrated with a weak base, prepare first, an indicator that is strong. Then using neutral titration, prepare a weak acid solution starting with a strong indicator.

From the titration

At equivalence: $pH = pK_a$ of weak acid. pH approximately constant in neighborhood of equivalence point as it is a buffer (acid and base present).

At endpoint: occurring two units above of the equivalence point is in a weak indicator. Base and acid present at equal molarities the generation would be a $pH = pK_a$ indicator of that.
