Seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject Economics Macro economics general grade A3 Hacettepe University Department of Economics course International Political Economy language English abstract Growth economics is the branch of economics answering questions related to what are determinants of economic growth whether is it possible to reach a maintainable growth rate on the long run if it is preferable to let governments interfere in market performance in order to fasten rates of economic growth Harrod and Domar attempted to answer these questions through applying Keynes economics for economic analysis They found that savings and investments stable rates are the key for rapid long term growth especially in developing countries Therefore government intervention was needed to help stimulate savings and investments Years later Solow and Swan attempted to answer same questions through their neoclassical growth model In this model it was assumed that a maintained rising saving rates leads to transition from slow growth into fast growth path This meant a focus on technological progress However part of the growth was not explained by growth in production factors which are capital and labor Solow stated that this unexplained factor was the residual or total factor productivity Therefore government policies were assumed to be effective on aggregate output not on growth rates Economics and You Kristen Girard

Elementary Economics (grades 4-6) Economic Education Enrichment Program,1967* Negotiations and Game Theory.
Understanding situations in which decision-makers interact Elena Ristova,2020-07-09 Seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject Economics International Economic Relations grade 1 7 Pforzheim University language English abstract This paper is about negotiations and the game theory Negotiation has been since ever omnipresent It can confront us in our daily life for example the question who is doing the dishes today or in much more complex is such as in economics or politics Simply defined negotiation is the process of attempting to get what one wants through agreement with one or more other parties There are different tools with which negotiations can be modeled One of them is game theory GAME THEORY aims to help us understand situations in which decision makers interact A game in the everyday sense a competitive activity in which players contend with each other according to a set of rules According to the definition game theory is an appropriate tool to apply for negotiations and get the best outcome of it It can make it easier for us to analyze our own needs the least acceptable agreement and desires the most desired outcome but also the ones of our opponent. Consequently, game theory allows us to estimate the strategy the other party is going to use. Moreover, game theory reaches back far in history. There had been recognized some game theoretic situations even in the bible. But the major development started in the 1920s. First, game theory was a mathematic discipline. The two mathematicians John von Neumann and Emile Borel worked on game theory and subsequently the book Theory of games and economic behavior was published by von Neumann and Oskar Morgenstern in 1944. Later in the 1950s, game theory was not only considered to be a mathematician discipline but it has been also applied in economic theory and political science and psychologists began studying how human subjects behave in experimental games.

Emergence and Persistence of Inefficient States Mirko Hajek, 2015-09-30 Master's Thesis from the year 2014 in the subject Economics Other grade 1.0 University of Leipzig Institut für Theoretische Ökonomie course Masterarbeit language English abstract

Bureaucratic inefficiency, patronage, induced overstaffing, and outright corruption retard economic development and reduce public well-being in developing countries. They prevent governments from effectively carrying out the economic plans to which they devote so much official attention and deprive citizens of government services to which they are legally entitled. Geddes 1991, p. 371. Corruption, patronage, and inefficient bureaucracies are widespread in many countries and under all forms of government. Whereas such problems are often recognized to be at the core of rent-seeking regimes like dictatorships or oligarchies, they occur in similar ways in developing and even in developed democracies. For instance, there is evidence for bureaucratic inefficiency, corruption, and patronage in Brazil (Weyland 1996) but also in Germany (Braendle 2012) and France (Facchini and Melki 2013). A rich body of research, however, underlines the importance of good institutions as main determinants of economic development, growth, and prosperity. But why and under which conditions do some societies choose inefficient institutions? This is the main question the thesis seeks to answer. A related second question concerns a possible explanation for the setup of inefficient institutions. Why do democracies often pursue relatively elite-biased policies, contrary to the predictions of the median voter theorem? As Acemoglu (2010, p. 1) notes, institutions are often structured to maximize the rents captured by the elite, the individuals or social groups monopolizing political power. In electoral democracy, the influence of different social groups should be closer related to their population share than in nondemocracy. However, the distribution of political power can be diluted if institutions reshape politics.
