1. Aggregate Demand and Aggregate Supply

For each of the following situations assume the economy is initially in long run equilibrium (label this point A in your graph) then draw the short-run impact of the described change and label the new short-run equilibrium as point B in your graph. Finally draw the new long run equilibrium situation after full adjustment to the described changes and label this long run equilibrium as point C in your graph. Your graph for each situation should contain the initial LRAS, AD and AS curves as well as the any new curves that occur in response to the described change. On the graph be sure to mark the actual path the economy follows as it moves along the AS and AD curves. Give a brief description in words of what happens in the short run and long run in each scenario.
