

Using Your Timing Light

Checking Mechanical/Centrifugal Timing Advance

1. MAKE SURE the timing light Advance Display shows 0 (zero) degrees. Press the Zeroing Switch if necessary to obtain 0 degree indication.
2. While performing an INITIAL (BASE) TIMING CHECK as previously described, slowly increase engine speed to the manufacturer's specified rpm for mechanical/centrifugal advance, and observe the rotating timing mark for change. The timing mark should appear to move smoothly, in the opposite direction of engine rotation, away from the reference pointer.

NOTE

If timing mark movement is rough or erratic, the mechanical advance system may be defective. Service and repair the mechanical advance system in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions before continuing.

3. Press the Advance Increment and Advance Decrement switches, as necessary, until the rotating timing mark and the reference pointer realign at the initial (base) timing mark as previously recorded. Read the degrees of mechanical or centrifugal advance on the LCD display. See Figure 5.
4. Note the degrees advance shown on the LCD display, and compare this value with the manufacturer's specification for mechanical or centrifugal timing advance for the rpm specified.
 - If the position of the rotating timing mark does not change during the mechanical/centrifugal advance check, the mechanical weights associated with your vehicle's mechanical advance mechanism (if equipped) may be rusted or binding.
5. Repeat the test, as needed, for all engine speeds specified by the manufacturer's instructions.

Checking Vacuum Timing Advance

NOTE

A vacuum pump equipped with a vacuum gauge is needed to check vacuum advance.

1. With the engine off, disconnect the vacuum hose from the distributor's vacuum advance port. Plug the vacuum hose securely.
2. Connect the vacuum pump to the distributor's vacuum port. Do not apply vacuum at this time.
3. Start the engine and perform INITIAL (BASE) TIMING CHECK as previously described. Record the degree(s) of initial (base) timing.
4. Using the vacuum pump, apply the manufacturer's specified amount of vacuum to the distributor's vacuum port.
