Reading: Genetic Variation in Cornelian Worksho and genetic variation in genetics (complete each of the following questions, demonstrating your understanding of the concepts discussed in the lecture)

1. Match each of the following changes in DNA sequence structure to its definition:

A. Deletion

B. Duplication

C. Inversion

D. Translocation

(a. a section of a chromosome is inserted)

(b. a piece of a chromosome is deleted)

(c. a segment of one chromosome has moved (physically) to a different, non-homologous, chromosome)

(d. a section of a chromosome appears to be in two places at a time)

2. How many genetically different gametes can be produced from a diploid cell with four chromosomes pairs? Describe your answer.

There are 16 genetically different gametes that can be produced because in a diploid cell there are four chromosome pairs. Each pair can contribute either one or two chromosomes to the gametes.

3. Although you will learn a classification of mutations this semester, you recognize that some mutations cause the loss of function of a protein. For example, both color and eye color are affected. Why might some mutations be inherited together?

These mutations are linked together and found on the same chromosome. Therefore, they are inherited together as a unit, and a mutation in one gene may affect other nearby genes on the same chromosome. This is because the genes are located on the same chromosome, and they are inherited together.

4. Describe the alignment of chromosomes during prophase I, write the equations:

Chromosomes I and II are aligned and chromosomes III and IV are aligned. This is a bivalent because it shows the pairing between sister and non-sister chromosomes.

5. How does recombination lead to chromosomes with recombinant genes? Describe two types of genetic variation that can result from recombination.
