Working with indigenous knowledge Fhumulani M. Mulaudzi, Rachel T. Lebeso, 2022 The aim of the book is to assist both local and international scholars in articulating the scholarly discourse on indigenous health attitudes, practices, and experiences. The indigenous lens that was used to generate and disseminate indigenous knowledge in this book will strengthen indigenous scholarship, thus making it accessible to a wider audience. In addition, the information shared in this book will add value for scholars and assist them with the indigenous knowledge needed to address sustainable development goals. This book is timely and topical as the discourse on the decolonisation of the curriculum is widely debated in the higher education space. The discourse on the scholarship of indigenous knowledge as the tacit local knowledge that stems from cultural practices within communities has not been well articulated in the current health science education milieu. Indigenous knowledge has remained overlooked and undermined for a very long time, and the information remains untapped in local communities. The scholars who conducted the research on which this book is based unearthed a wealth of knowledge which was tacit in nature and translated it into implicit knowledge that can be documented and shared with other scholars globally. This knowledge will assist health care scholars in benefiting from knowledge, practices, and cultural beliefs that will assist them in health care planning, teaching, evidence-based practice, and further research

Current Research Trends and Applications in Waste Management Brijendra Kumar Kashyap, Manoj Kumar Solanki, 2023-11-13 This book covers latest information on organic and inorganic waste management and how the waste can be utilized as an energy source. An increasing world population and climate change rate hint that environmental health needs a sustainable waste recycling system worldwide. Management of waste material plays a substantial role in the environment and climate regulation. Chapters contain modern tools and techniques for managing inorganic, biomedical, municipality, and food waste. The title covers the role of contemporary microbiology and biotechnological tools in waste management and how these microbial agents can enhance waste degradation and bioenergy production. The book covers interesting topics such as bio-ethanol production from agro-waste, microbial fuel cells, biogas production from animal waste, nanotechnology in waste recycling, etc. The primary audiences are researchers, scientists, students, and policymakers interlinked with waste management and applied microbial sectors

The African Food Environments Amos Laar, Kaleab Baye, Anna Lartey, Francis Zotor, Gershim Asiki, 2023-09-05 In many respects, the continent of Africa is in transition. Prominent among them currently is the nutrition transition. One consequence of the nutrition transition is the increase in prevalence of nutrition-related non-communicable diseases (NCDs) such as obesity, type 2 diabetes, cardiovascular diseases, and certain cancers Although NCDs are a global public health problem the rate of increase in NCDs morbidity and mortality in some African countries is staggering This surge has been linked to modifiable environmental factors factors that facilitate the consumption of obesogenic energy dense nutrient poor foods rather than unrefined cereals fruits and vegetables It has long been recognized that the physical and social environments in which people live work and eat are critical determinants of their health More recently there has been a greater focus on the food environment as a key determinant of health Available evidence shows that unhealthy food environments drive unhealthy diets and unhealthy diet is one of four main risk factors for NCDs

Quality of sexual and reproductive health care: strengths, gaps, and challenges for midwifery care Ramon Escuriet, Lorena Binfa , Loreto Pantoja, 2025-02-18 Poor quality of sexual and reproductive care SRC persists despite countries commitments to international conferences The challenges posed by the COVID 19 pandemic reversed trends in maternal and neonatal mortality and contraception rates increasing unmet family planning needs and gender based violence Evidence shows that midwifery care has made an essential contribution to the development of high quality services in maternal and childcare The introduction of midwifery professionals trained according to international standards and integrated into the health system can provide around 90% of primary health care for women and newborns including family planning These skilled professionals can save lives and improve the health and well being of women and newborn infants at a scale unmatched by other health interventions Evidence identified 56 outcomes improved by the full scope of midwifery The weight of sexual and reproductive health on general health and wellbeing has a greater impact on women particularly those that are neglected to receive high quality SRC Providing high quality SRC demands more humanized and integrated efficient and effective services with a greater emphasis on quality both from a technical perspective and from the user experience Despite all the efforts the quality of SRC is still a challenge globally research is needed to identify best practices addressing quality care tailored to individuals implementation of models of care that enhance both well being and safety optimization of physiological processes during childbirth as well as validation of outcomes measures
