Linde Hydraulic Control (LHC)

Right-angle hydraulic controls

Controls in series 300 and 400 series have been designed to be used with existing hydraulic systems. Instead of a hydraulic controller, a separate electronic controller equipped with a fully programmable microcontroller is used to control functions for the lift and tilt of working hydraulics (1).

Adaptation to existing trucks

The separate control unit is installed in existing trucks that do not have an engine and with different drive systems. To save fitting time, components are standard, and their installation has a coding that already identifies the truck.

Functionality

The presence of the electronic control unit enables standard work light systems. The presence of a programmable digital indicator and position sensor, and detection of a gear change or fuel saving function on the main controller, it enables the control unit to activate a variety of functions according to the truck's load capacity.

- 1. Programmable function
- 2. Expansion function of the hydraulic controller logic
- 3. The load capacity and working position information used as a target value
- 4. The load capacity of the electronic control, the control unit can be adapted to
- 5. An anti-collision system

These indicators can be connected to existing or the controller logic with the key switch. Using a switch, the control unit enables the user to set priority. It has more or less priority for the main controller function. If the user permits, the user can also control the truck and use of the hydraulic functions and use.

Changing the controller

Warning

Existing hydraulic components designed for use electronically, including components designed for existing controllers will work if the controller is moved.

The controller is equipped with a 7-pin plug which is connected to the truck's main wiring harness. Communication wires plug into CAN bus. The control unit must not be subjected to stress or damage due to the truck's operation.

Notes

1. For compatibility in existing hydraulic systems, your controller logic is identified and also adapted to the truck system. All electronic components are available in the truck system.
