Warm air advection occurs where the wind flows across isobars from higher pressure (values to lower isobars) values. This air mass is a being transported towards a low-pressure by the movement of air. Based on this the low above, you would expect characteristics of that air mass to be rising, cold air advection occurs where the wind flows across the isobars from lower (colder) values to higher (warmer) values.
