Global Challenges, Local Impacts: Rethinking Governance, Sustainability, and Consumption in Light of Climate Change, 2024-01-31 Aquatic Food Webs Andrea Belgrano, 2005-04-07 Aquatic Food Webs provides a current synthesis of theoretical and empirical food web research The textbook is suitable for graduate level students as well as professional researchers in community ecosystem and theoretical ecology in aquatic ecology and in conservation biology Books in Print Supplement, 2002 Community Ecology Gary George Mittelbach, Brian J. McGill, 2019 Community ecology has undergone a transformation in recent years from a discipline largely focused on processes occurring within a local area to a discipline encompassing a much richer domain of study including the linkages between communities separated in space metacommunity dynamics niche and neutral theory the interplay between ecology and evolution eco evolutionary dynamics and the influence of historical and regional processes in shaping patterns of biodiversity To fully understand these new developments however students continue to need a strong foundation in the study of species interactions and how these interactions are assembled into food webs and other ecological networks This new edition fulfils the book s original aims both as a much needed up to date and accessible introduction to modern community ecology and in identifying the important questions that are yet to be answered This research driven textbook introduces state of the art community ecology to a new generation of students adopting reasoned and balanced perspectives on as yet unresolved issues Community Ecology is suitable for advanced undergraduates graduate students and researchers seeking a broad up to date coverage of ecological concepts at the community level Children's Books in Print R R Bowker Publishing, Bowker, 1999-12 Development and Tests of Two Null Theories of Ecological Communities Annette Marie Ostling, 2004 New Developments in the Biology of Chrysomelidae Pierre Jolivet, Jorge Santiago-Blay, Michael Schmitt, 2021-10-25 This book summarizes what is actually known about the biology of Leaf Beetles It is the most recent study in the field As we are well aware Chrysomelidae one of the three largest families of beetles are of great economic importance since they can be a serious pest to crops or on the other hand can be used to destroy imported weeds This is due to the selectivity of their feeding preferences In this way Chrysomelidae are an invaluable tool for studying plant selection mechanisms The many and varied topics dealt with in this book cover almost all aspects of phylogeny classification paleontology parasitology biogeography defenses population biology genetics and biological control as well as many other subjects The most renowned specialists in these fields have been chosen to put together a diverse state of the art publication Few beetle families have been studied in such detail as the Chrysomelids This is not only due to their economic importance but also to their incredible variety of forms and behaviors There are no less than 40 000 species currently in existence worldwide but probably 100 000 species have existed since the Jurassic when they first came into being with the Cycadoids and other primitive plant families later to diversify during the Cretaceous with the advent of flowering plants Immunoregulation Royal Society (Great Britain). Community Ecology Herman A. Verhoef, Peter J. Morin, 2010 Community ecology is the study of the interactions between populations of co existing species Co edited by two prominent community ecologists and featuring contributions from top researchers in the field this book provides a survey of the state of the art in both the theory and applications of the discipline It pays special attention to topology dynamics and the importance of spatial and temporal scale while also looking at applications to emerging problems in human dominated ecosystems including the restoration and reconstruction of viable communities Community Ecology Processes Models and Applications adopts a mainly theoretical approach and focuses on the use of network based theory which remains little explored in standard community ecology textbooks The book includes discussion of the effects of biotic invasions on natural communities the linking of ecological network structure to empirically measured community properties and dynamics the effects of evolution on community patterns and processes and the integration of fundamental interactions into ecological networks A final chapter indicates future research directions for the discipline

Atlas of European Butterflies Josef Settele, 2008 Climate change will cause Europe to lose much of its biodiversity as projected by a comprehensive study on future butterfly distribution The Climatic Risk Atlas of European Butterflies predicts northward shifts in potential distribution area of many European butterfly species As early warning indicators of environmental change butterflies are a valuable tool to assess overall climate change impact and to provide some indication on the chances to come nearer to the target of halting the loss of biodiversity by 2010 set by the EU Heads of State in 2001 The Climatic Risk Atlas of European Butterflies is based on the work of scores of scientists from across Europe They applied climate change models to data collected by tens of thousands of volunteers The authors say that some climate change is now inevitable and that the extent of the losses will depend on the degree of that change and how we respond to the new threat Butterflies have already suffered huge losses across Europe following decades of habitat loss and changing farming and forestry practices As temperatures rise majority of butterfly species will try to head north This won't always be achievable The forestry and farming changes mean that areas of suitable habitat are now often small and too far apart for butterflies to travel between them The worst case scenario scientists examined sees the average European temperature rise by 4.1 C by 2080 In that case over 95 per cent of the present land occupied by 70 different butterflies would become too warm for continued survival The best case scenario sees a 2.4 C temperature rise Even this would mean that 50 per cent of the land occupied by 147 different butterflies would become too warm for them to continue to exist there Many butterflies will largely disappear from where they are regularly seen now The Small Tortoiseshell will become absent from a huge swathe of middle and southern Europe and will become restricted to northern Europe Under the worst case scenario rare species like the Spanish Festoon Zerynthia rumina would experience a 97% loss from Spain and Southern France and the Apollo Parnassius apollo would suffer a 76% loss from mountainous areas Climate change is already having an impact on butterflies Over 60 mobile species with widespread food plants are known to have spread north in Europe over recent decades including the Comma Polygonia c. album which is spreading north in the UK at 10km per year Other species have moved further up mountains The chief author of Climatic Atlas of European Butterflies is Dr Josef Settele from the Helmholtz Centre for Environmental Research UFZ in Germany He said The Atlas shows for the first time how the majority of European butterflies might respond to climate change Most species will have to shift their distribution radically to keep pace with the changes The way butterflies change will indicate the possible response of many other insects which collectively comprise over two thirds of all species Dr Martin Warren Chairman of Butterfly Conservation Europe and one of the authors said Evidence points to an acceleration in climate change after 2050 unless there is a significant decrease in global CO2 emissions This accelerated change would be the final nail in the coffin for many European species We need to be ready for this worst case scenario We need place more emphasis on maintaining large diverse populations on existing habitats while re connecting habitats to allow species to move across the landscape This means working closely with farmers and planners Dr Ladislav Miko Director of Nature Conservation at the EU Environment Directorate in Brussels said We strongly welcome this important study which helps us understand how species might respond to climate change The evidence points to a radical change in species distribution which we must plan for within future European policies The results show the enormous scientific value of records from thousands of volunteers across Europe Sebastian Winkler Head of Countdown 2010 stated The astounding outcomes of this study should remind world leaders once more that if immediate action is not taken the 2010 biodiversity target will not be reached and biological diversity will continue to decline The Climatic Risk Atlas of European Butterflies was written by researchers from across Europe under the EU Sixth Framework programme projects ALARM Assessing Large scale Environmental Risks for biodiversity with tested Methods www.alarmproject.net and MACIS Minimisation of and Adaptation to Climate change Impacts on biodiversity www.macis-project.net Contacts Josef Settele Butterfly Conservation Europe Helmholtz Centre of Environmental Research UFZ Department of Community Ecology Tel xx 49 345 558 5320 Josef Settele ufz.de Martin Warren Butterfly Conservation Europe Butterfly Conservation UK Tel xx 44 7775 590750 Dirk Maes Butterfly Conservation Europe Research Institute for Nature and Forest INBO xx 322 5581837 dirk.maes@inbo.be Tilo Arnhold Helmholtz Centre of Environmental Research UFZ PR Department Tel xx 49 341 235 1635 Tilo.Arnhold@ufz.de In cooperation with Pensoft Publishers
