

Chapter 1: Linear Equations

Section 1.1: Fields

Page 3. Hoffman and Kuzre comment that the term "characteristic zero" is "strange." But the characteristic is the smallest n such that $n \cdot 1 = 0$. In a characteristic zero field the smallest such n is 0. This must be why they use the term "characteristic zero" and it doesn't seem that strange.

Section 1.2: Systems of Linear Equations

Page 5 Clarification: In Exercise 6 of this section they ask us to show, in the special case of two equations and two unknowns, that two homogeneous linear systems have the exact same solutions then they have the same row-reduced echelon form (we know the converse is always true by Theorem 3, page 7). Later in Exercise 10 of section 1.4 they ask us to prove it when there are two equations and three unknowns. But they never tell us whether this is true in general (for arbitrary numbers of unknowns and equations). In fact it is true in general. This explanation was given on math.stackexchange.

Solutions to the homogeneous system associated with a matrix is the same as determining the null space of the relevant matrix. The row space of a matrix is complementary to the null space. This is true not only for inner product spaces, and can be proved using the theory of non-degenerate symmetric bilinear forms.

So if two matrices of the same order have exactly the same null space, they must also have exactly the same row
