This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes must be read in conjunction with the question papers and the report on the examination.

- CIE will not enter into discussions or correspondence in connection with these mark schemes.

CIE is publishing the mark schemes for the October/November 2010 question papers for most IGCSE, GCE Advanced Level and Advanced Subsidiary Level syllabuses and some Ordinary Level syllabuses.

Mathai, Sylvia Lorek, Wolfgang Sachs, 2023-12-13 That the notion of sufficiency is essential for a good life is an idea that enjoys support across many ethical philosophical religious and cultural persuasions This notion reasserted itself in the study of sustainability once modern society reluctantly took cognizance of the limited low entropy energy and matter available for human appropriation There is today therefore a general recognition of i e not necessarily wide agreement on the merits of or needs for notions of sufficiency as a species of environmentalism within secular communities In this context a critical question that invites our attention is how to effect sufficiency and in particular of dealing with the daunting challenge of injustice as well as questions of distribution within and between countries that it brings to attention Given sufficiency's original home as it were in tradition the modern world has tended to dismiss it or to plead to individual voluntary simplicity when faced with evidence asserting its necessity Sufficiency is also often written away as a spiritual problem The domain of ascetics and the religious How to rehabilitate sufficiency in a political economy for the secular modern facing its biggest existential challenge yet in the form of the environmental crisis

The Economics of Protected Marine Species: Concepts in Research and Management Kristy Wallmo, Kathryn Bisack, Daniel K. Lew, Dale E. Squires, 2016-10-21 Protected marine species have populations that are depleted decreasing or are at risk of extinction or local extirpation As of 2015 The International Union for the Conservation of Nature a global environmental organization lists approximately 737 marine species worldwide that are considered at risk of extinction Many are provided legal protection through national laws requiring research and management measures aimed at recovering and maintaining the species at a sustainable population level Integral to the policy decision process involving the management and recovery of marine species is the consideration of trade offs between the economic and ecological costs and benefits of protection This suggests that economics at its core the study of trade offs has a significant role In the U S a somewhat traditional use of economics in protected species research and management has involved cost minimization or cost effectiveness analyses to help select or prioritize conservation actions Economic research has also provided estimates of public non market benefits of recovering species which can be used in larger management frameworks such as ecosystem based management and coastal and marine spatial planning Inherent in much of this research however are complex biological and ecological relationships in which varying degrees of scientific uncertainty are present Addressing this type of uncertainty can affect the economic outcomes related to protected species For example recent work suggests that increasing scientific precision in biological sampling and models can greatly affect the magnitude of economic benefits to commercial fisheries while other research suggests that public non market benefits of species recovery are sensitive to uncertainty about baseline population estimates Previous research has illustrated the importance of understanding the biological ecological and economic aspects of protected species management and recovery In this research topic we synthesize current protected marine species economic research and expand the discussion on present and future challenges related to protected species economics The series of manuscripts brings together an array of prominent researchers and advances our understanding of the ecological and economic aspects of managing and recovering protected marine species

Ecosystems as Models for Restoring our Economies, 2nd Edition John H. Giordanengo, 2025-04-01 Emerging from the fields of ecological restoration and economics this interdisciplinary book delivers a clear path to restoring our economies in a way that speaks well to industry groups and business owners students and the general public and to policy makers There are proven relationships between ecology and economics Giordanengo employs those relationships in an intriguing way and integrates them with global case studies to argue that redesigning

economic systems according to ecological principles is necessary to balancing critical social environmental and economic goals For example he reveals how more obscure ecological principles and theories succession evolution diversity productivity curves and so on can inform the restructuring of economic systems that are resilient productive and regenerative A variety of students and practitioners have read the first edition or attended John s seminars only to remark Why haven t we learned this in our traditional coursework or This book brings so much clarity to the fields of sustainability and environmental sciences Traditional approaches to sustainability focus on the social environmental and economic pillars of an economy while paying little attention to the foundation those pillars rest upon A comprehensive focus on our economy s foundational components has been ignored for good reason we have lacked an understanding of what they are or how they interact with one another Cross cutting research between ecological and economic systems reveals three foundational components i e drivers common to both systems The effective management of these components is perhaps the most important obstacle to resolving current tensions between society nature and the global market economy The scale at which diversity energy and trade must be managed is also justified by self regulating ecosystems such as jungles prairies and pine forests That scale is not global nor is it hyper local The economic and ecological rationale agree that the scale of a sustainable economy the natural geography of humans is regional To the contrary the attempt to manage our economy at a global scale has given rise to chronic social environmental and economic symptoms across earth In highly developed countries such as the United States these symptoms include flat real wages and productivity growth a growing wealth gap degraded environmental conditions rising social unrest and more The closing chapters outline a natural path for restoring our economies illuminated by humanities shared experience in ecological restoration The process of ecosystem recovery following disturbance i e succession is one such pathway Unwittingly developed nations such as the United States manage succession to concentrate wealth into fewer hands while lowering the economy s productive capacity net productivity and resistance to future disturbances Economic policies can also move the succession dial toward the productive and diverse center where wealth and resources are recirculated quickly new business opportunities are created and resilience and resistance are fortified a stout shield in the face of global economic turmoil For policymakers consumers and industry groups this book explores root causes of the challenges you face so that you may take deep correct actions to yield lasting change Giordanengo provides critique but goes further with clear steps that individuals businesses communities and policymakers can take to start restoring our economies now From agricultural restoration to regional manufacturing and energy systems he outlines practical strategies and policy mechanisms for building regenerative economies Students will find not just theoretical and systems knowledge but applied economics ecology and conservation centered around actionable pathways Economic restoration is not only possible it is our humanitarian duty

Export Product Quality, Renewable Energy, and Sustainable Production, 3rd edition Umer Shahzad,Gagan Deep Sharma,Lianbiao Cui ,John Mendy,2025-11-20 Economic development has long been acknowledged for its beneficial effects on human well being In the context of economic globalization and vertical specialization increasing the quality of export products is more critical and necessary to export success and sustainable development The product s quality is inextricably linked to its manufacture and production which need various types of energy and raw materials Meanwhile the adoption of more environmentally friendly and cleaner energy sources contributes to the achievement of sustainable production Therefore product quality may provide a new perspective from which to investigate the systematic relationship between greener and renewable energy sources sustainable production and environmental regulations as well as the nature of export competitiveness Generally export product quality has referred to the quality of manufactured products within the product lines Quality refers to the relative price of a country s varieties within their respective product lines Product sophistication assesses the composition of the aggregate exports Different varieties of same product as per quality level are being produced by several developing and emerging economies Within any given product line quality converges both conditionally and unconditionally to the world s benchmark increases in institutional quality and human capital are associated with faster quality upgrading In turn faster growth in quality is associated with more rapid output growth The existing literature has mostly concentrated on the question of whether environmental regulation enhances or erodes export competitiveness offering some valuable insights into Porter s theory but it lacks a coherent theoretical framework Little research has been done to examine the relationship between export product quality and renewable energy sources manufacturing and overall sustainable production calling for advancement of the scholarship to tackle this burning issue Numerous concerns have been expressed over the appalling connection between sustained development industry and environmental protection The United Nations UN adopted the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development in 2015 to balance economic social and environmental development through the introduction of 17 Sustainable Development Goals SDG which encouraged researchers in trade environment energy and related fields to adopt an integrative rather than isolative approach This Research Topic is dedicated to the study of the environment through the lenses of export product quality export policies and sustainable production The aim is to advance knowledge in the fields of export quality trade perspectives renewable energy the environment and sustainable production through the dissemination of research that promotes holistic sustainability for the greater welfare of humanity This topic will prioritize research focusing on emerging and developing economies Academic scholars and researchers must both test hypotheses and put forward ideas for new solutions For example it is assumed that higher quality products require expensive inputs and resources for manufacturing It must also provide strategies for a speedy and economically viable transition to renewable energy This Research Topic is a step in this direction
