The Future of NATO's Tactical Air Doctrine Linda E. Torrens, 1997 This study analyzes the need for changes to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO airpower doctrine to reflect current post cold war realities NATO air doctrine does not yet reflect the actuality of today's operations nor does it anticipate the probable future employment of NATO's airpower. Out of area operations and Partnership for Peace participation in NATO operations will have profound effects on combined doctrine training, organizational structures, exercises, and employment of forces. NATO's tactical doctrine revision process served the alliance well during the cold war. But today the international environment has drastically changed. Both the nature of the threat and the use of NATO airpower during conflict have changed. The current doctrinal revision process has proved too slow and cumbersome to provide adequate direction for air strategists during ongoing operations. There are many new doctrinal areas that must be thoroughly addressed so that NATO can chart a course for the future that in the end provides the best, most effective mix of forces.

Air Force Magazine, 1981 Secrets of the Viet Cong James W. McCoy, 1992. In this thorough examination of the tactical war waged in Vietnam, former paratroop officer J. W. McCoy explains how the Viet Cong won the war and why the strategies they used were effective against the U.S. forces. Shaping their thought with the ideas of Sun Tzu, the Viet Cong became adept at maneuver war. That skill enabled them to secure and hold the initiative in the Vietnam war. Interestingly enough, the Viet Cong war doctrine also paralleled Liddell Hart's theories; unfortunately, few American generals ever read his work. Discussions of organization and control, battle art, order of battle, and operations meticulously detailed in hundreds of charts, tables, and illustrations help the reader understand the strategic mistakes made by the South Vietnamese and the United States and how the Viet Cong maneuvered their way to victory.
