

"Great Expectations" Dialectical Reading Journal

Note-Taking	Commentary
"The guilty knowledge that I was going to rob Mrs. Joe - I never thought I was going to rob Joe, for I never thought of any of the housekeeping property as his" (Ch. 2, Page 10)	This simple thought of Pip's truly shows the hierarchy of power in this family, as well as how much fear and friendship really impact his opinions about people. He is willing to do anything to please his sister, the woman that he fears, but doesn't consider the fact that he was going to hurt his friend-Joe. I really find this interesting because of the fact that I am the exact opposite. If I was afraid of something, I would rather fight against it rather than succumb to its will. I would much rather try to please the people that I love rather than the things that I fear.
"I had seen the damp lying on the outside of my little window, as if some goblin had been crying there all night, and using the window for a pocket-handkerchief. Now, I saw the damp lying on the bare hedges and spare grass, like a coarser sort of spiders' webs; hanging itself from twig to twig and blade to blade. On every rail and gate, wet lay clammy, and the marsh mist was so thick, that the wooden finger on the post directing people to our village-a direction which they never accepted, for they never came there-was invisible to me until I was quite close under it. Then, as I looked up at it, while it dripped, it seemed to my oppressed conscience like a phantom devoting me to the Hulks." (Ch. 3, Page 13)	When you read between the lines, you can see that all these different objects are horrendous or terrifying such as the goblins, spiders, and phantoms. Using such creatures to symbolize Pip's home makes me beg the question-what does Pip see as his home? Is it all a nightmare for him? Surely his sister does provide both physical and emotional stress at home, but this is different. He isn't describing his living situation, he's describing his whole town-the village, the marshes, the Hulks-all of it. Further evidence that supports this is when he talks about a sign pointing to his village, but no one dares to enter. Though this may not hold THAT much significant meaning, it's still eerie to notice the hellish things inside Pip's head, as well as how Dickens portrays these things in his writing.
