Using Stories as the Landscape of Writing Christine McDowell, 2015 In this dissertation I investigate the way in which mentor texts are defined and implemented by four elementary classroom teachers within one school district and how this mode of instruction allows for an increase in teacher autonomy while still addressing Common Core State Standards This project focuses on each participant as they share a common goal in writing instruction while maintaining their teaching identity and curricular freedom One goal of this study is to provide the educational theory that supports mentor text instruction that is missing from the movement Many teaching guides exist that explain the concept of mentor texts but they do not explore the foundations behind the teaching practice This study seeks to create this missing foundation to ensure that this practice becomes a permanent part of writing instruction rather than a passing trend The second goal is to provide insight as to how teachers put this theory into practice The same teaching guides are filled with detailed lesson plans and annotated bibliographies but they do not examine how to make this practice a permanent part of writing instruction Instead they read as disjointed singular lesson ideas This study also seeks to break down the implementation process so that it is accessible to all teachers Although the concept of mentor texts is growing in the field of English Education little has been said about the implementation of the practice into mainstream writing instruction What are the critical features of a quality mentor text Do they support Common Core State Standards How do the criteria of mentor texts differ among lessons or among teachers How do students respond to mentor texts as a model of writing This study examines how teachers are implementing mentor texts into a permanent part of their writing curriculum how they discern which mentor texts to include and how they facilitate the instruction with their students

Using the Writer's Notebook in Grades 3-8 Janet L. Elliott, 2008 Janet Elliott provides practical ideas assignments and examples of student writing This book offers a vision of what is possible for young writers both in writing across the curriculum and in writing workshop Janet Elliott performs magic in the classroom by encouraging children to write In this highly readable guide Elliott provides everything you need to re-create that magic in your classroom including tips and ideas for getting started with writer's notebooks and using them effectively all year long Filled with practical ideas assignments and examples of student writing this book offers a vision of what is possible for young writers both in writing across the curriculum and in writing workshop You'll also find handy management tips that help you meet the challenges that often arise Starting with a rationale for using writer's notebooks topics include getting started using the notebook to record observations and using children's literature as a springboard for writing entries Elliott shows you how to help students develop their entries through the writing process and use the notebook as a planning tool Also included are a focused unit of study for the writer's notebook and a special chapter about engaging boys in notebook writing You'll return to this valuable resource again and again whether you've used writer's notebooks for years or are just starting out How to Align Literacy Instruction, Assessment, and Standards Nancy L. Akhavan, 2004 In this book Nancy Akhavan details the stories and strategies that enabled her school to move from under performing status to one in which students achieve and teachers have a whole new understanding of targeted instruction sensitive assessment and meaningful curriculum There is much to appreciate in what she says from her attention to thinking small and understanding the power of the details her emphasis on planning and goal setting to the seriousness with which she takes the standards and incorporates them into the life of the classroom Drawing on the work of the best in the business Lucy Calkins David and Yvonne Freeman and Tony Alvarado Akhavan made professional development the heartbeat of her school as she helped her faculty understand that their work begins and ends with continuous assessment of their students Now she helps readers of her book learn how child centered assessment leads to strategic instruction how to best support multilingual learners how to organize for yearlong learning how to think through precise workshop instruction in minilessons how to develop meaningful curriculum around units of study how to create a vibrant school community where standards and accountability stem from regular assessment and examination of instructional practices Akhavan provides immediately useful information for any elementary teacher principal or curriculum developer Read her book and understand how to use standards as a way to connect meaningful instruction to students not as a bar that students have to reach or a barrier to real teaching and learning The Mentor-world Traveler, 1922 Story Celebrations Jan Irving, 2008-02-28 Put some juice into your library programs with these lively thematic book based activities for children in grades 4-8 In each chapter one program is suited to the needs of school libraries and the other is targeted at public libraries although both can be adapted to either environment Using Mentor Texts to Teach 6 + 1 Writing Traits Beverly A. DeVries, 2022-12-30 In this book you'll find a wealth of mini lessons designed to improve the quality of students writing Each lesson uses a key mentor text and spotlights one of the 6 + 1 Writing Traits to allow students to focus on the essential aspects of good writing content organization word choice voice sentence fluency conventions and presentation Inviting and practical the lessons are concise and follow a consistent model for easy implementation With seven lessons per chapter each includes step by step guidance open ended prompts and suggestions for additional suitable mentor texts The chapters are organized by genre including fiction informational texts and poetry and feature graphic novels and graphic informational mentor texts to inspire and engage students Aligned with the Common Core State Standards this resource is essential for any K-8 or pre-service teacher who wants to instill in their students the skills to become independent confident writers Illinois Reading Council Journal, 2017 The Editor, 1930 Mentor-World Traveler, 1922
