Water Resources and Water Budgets (Corrected)

Part A: Water Budget, Precipitation and Potential Evapotranspiration

Table 1: Monthly mean precipitation and potential evapotranspiration (mm)

	Jan	Feb	Mar	Apr	May	Jun	Jul	Aug	Sep	Oct	Nov	Dec
Precipitation	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100
PET (potential evapotranspiration)	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100	100

- 1. The mean annual precipitation is equal to the mean of the monthly mean precipitation and is 1000mm; the evapotranspiration is equal to the sum of the monthly mean potential evapotranspiration and is 1200mm.
- 2. The mean evapotranspiration is 200mm annual surplus as the sum is an average of potential evapotranspiration less than the precipitation.
- 3. The surplus will be zero if the value of precipitation are high and average. If the surplus is negative, it means that PET is greater than precipitation, which means that there is a water deficit. In other words, there are different categories. The surplus or deficit is determined by comparing the water deficit value. Positive value indicates precipitation. The surplus value of PET is greater than the surplus that evapotranspiration is less than precipitation.
- 4. During these years, the soil is saturated because there is a surplus. Thus the surplus water is stored in the soil and the ground will become saturated areas.
