Criminal and Antisocial Behaviour Veroni I. Eichelsheim,Steve G. A. van de Weijer,2018-06-27 The relationship between a parent and a child is without any doubt one of the most influential and intimate relationships over the life course of an individual Children resemble their parents in a variety of life outcomes such as socioeconomic status family formation characteristics and political views There is growing evidence that some families despite interventions by child protection services judicial sanctions and social mobility are stuck in patterns of criminal behaviour poverty substance abuse teenage parenthood and other negative life events This is a growing global problem for which currently no solution is available This book brings together the most important and unique findings of intergenerational studies of criminal behaviour from around the world and from a variety of disciplines from criminology to sociology to anthropology Each chapter explores the historical background of a specific study its most important objectives and the unique conclusions and implications that can be drawn from the data Essential reading for all those interested in criminal behaviour psychological criminology and intergenerational psychology this book provides an extensive overview of intergenerational studies on patterns of continuity and discontinuity of criminal antisocial or delinquent behaviour as well as related behaviours or risk factors such as the intergenerational continuities in harsh parenting and family relationship quality Commerce Reports Nos. 1-13 Volume 1 Twenty-Sixth
