

Human Blood Cell Typing

What blood type are you?

Objectives

Use antigens present on human red blood cells and the way they are treated by the immune system during transfusion and use a few previously learned immunology terms. The focus is on how an individual's immune system will react to antigens. Immunological reactions are a system for being prepared for any threat. Learning whether you have any such reactions is not always easy to interpret.

Model 1 – Red Blood Cells and Agglutination

	Person with Blood Type A	Person with Blood Type B	Person with Blood Type AB	Person with Blood Type O
Red cells attached to each other
Antibodies present
Cells in the presence of anti-A antibodies
Cells in the presence of anti-B antibodies

- Identify which of the immunoglobulins are characterized by heterogeneity in structure and function, and the molecular size, and blood type.
- According to Model 1, how many blood types are possible for humans (remember, there are four)?
- What shape is used to Model 1 to represent an antibody?
- What antibodies's antigen(s) will form clumps of red blood cells?
  - Type A red blood cells will be clumped by anti-A antibodies, while type B red blood cells will be clumped by anti-B antibodies.
