Proceedings of the International Conference on Education Research Reza Hosseini, Reviews in Vaccination Programmes Chiara de Waure, Maarten Jacobus Postma, 2025-08-19 Infectious diseases continue to pose significant global health threats highlighting the crucial role of vaccination in safeguarding public health Vaccination has been one of the most successful public health interventions in history leading to the eradication or significant reduction of many life threatening diseases Vaccinations are provided within programmes that vary between and within countries and also in the light of the different organization of healthcare systems As new infectious agents emerge and existing ones evolve it becomes imperative to continually review monitor and update vaccination programmes to ensure their relevance and success In order to do so several aspects should be considered concerning not only vaccines properties but also the burden and relevance of diseases organizational aspects public response and sustainability This Research Topic aims to collect review articles on the latest developments in vaccination policies and strategies focusing on how they were informed developed implemented and monitored and on their contribution to population health and well being African Economic Development Christopher Cramer, John Sender, Arkebe Oqubay, 2020 This book challenges conventional wisdoms about economic performance and possible policies for economic development in African countries Its starting point is the striking variation in African economic performance Unevenness and inequalities form a central fact of African economic experiences The authors highlight not only differences between countries but also variations within countries differences often organized around distinctions of gender class and ethnic identity For example neo natal mortality and school dropout have been reduced particularly for some classes of women in some areas of Africa Horticultural and agribusiness exports have grown far more rapidly in some countries than in others These variations and many others point to opportunities for changing performance reducing inequalities learning from other policy experiences and escaping the ties of structure and the legacies of a colonial past The book rejects teleological illusions and Eurocentric prejudice but it does pay close attention to the results of policy in more industrialized parts of the world Seeing the contradictions of capitalism for what they are fundamental and enduring may help policy officials protect themselves against the misleading idea that development can be expected to be a smooth linear process or that it would be were certain impediments suddenly removed The authors criticize a wide range of orthodox and heterodox economists especially for their cavalier attitude to evidence Drawing on their own decades of research and policy experience they combine careful use of available evidence from a range of African countries with political economy insights mainly derived from Kalecki Kaldor and Hirschman to make the policy case for specific types of public sector investment
