Management 1 Jan vom Brocke, Michael Rosemann, 2010-09-21 Business Process Management BPM has become one of the most widely used approaches for the design of modern organizational and information systems. The conscious treatment of business processes as significant corporate assets has facilitated substantial improvements in organizational performance but is also used to ensure the conformance of corporate activities. This Handbook presents in two volumes the contemporary body of knowledge as articulated by the world's leading BPM thought leaders. This first volume focuses on arriving at a sound definition of Business Process Management approaches and examines BPM methods and process-aware information systems. As such it provides guidance for the integration of BPM into corporate methodologies and information systems. Each chapter has been contributed by leading international experts. Selected case studies complement these views and lead to a summary of BPM expertise that is unique in its coverage of the most critical success factors of BPM.

Identifying Errors in Supply Chain Processes with Process Mining Max-Leonhard Böttrich, 2022-08-09 Seminar paper from the year 2022 in the subject Engineering Industrial Engineering and Management grade 1.3 Technical University of Darmstadt Production and Supply Chain Management course Industrial Management language English abstract The following paper explains relevant fundamentals of the discussed topic with respect to process mining as well as for the understanding of supply chain processes. Consequently in a second step a literature review regarding the research field of process mining will be unfolded by retracing its design and conduction after elaborating a well-defined search phrase based on the research question. This paper then advances by summarizing the results of the literature review. The state of the art research with respect to the specific topic of this very paper are summarized and commented subsequently and if applicable taken up in later course. In this regard special challenges and approaches will be mentioned. The third part of this paper deals with the simulation as basis for conducting cross-organizational process mining. Here the setting the characteristics the simulation model and process errors will be explained. The resulting event log is going to be analyzed and interpreted by comparing to the input model. In the last part the event data of the supply chain process simulation serves as input for cross-organizational process mining. The results of the application will be analyzed and viewed at with specifically focusing context-related errors followed by evaluation of the process model considering the input-output relation with the event log from the simulated supply chain process. As a conclusion the results will be discussed and compared to other research results and questions will be raised for further research.

E-business M. Papazoglou, Pieter Ribbers, 2006 Two significant factors combine to drive the phenomenon of e-Business. Competition constantly motivates companies in their marketplaces while rapidly developing information technologies offer new opportunities and challenges. For Mike Papazoglou and Pieter Ribbers both business and technology are integral to e-Business. They demonstrate here how a solid understanding of business organization management and technology is crucial to an understanding of what e-Business is today and how it is going to be shaped in the future. e-Business Organisational and Technical Foundations focuses on the development of e-

Business between and within enterprises In particular it addresses how enterprises collaborate what coordination mechanism are necessary and how this is reflected at the technical infrastructure level It includes Abundant real world examples to encourage readers to understand and appreciate real life e Business An analytical and critical approach to understanding business issues decision making and technology use and development Extensive end of chapter discussion questions and assignments for students A companion website at www.wiley.com/go/ebusiness with additional exercises for students and PowerPoint slides and solutions for lecturers Barron's Guide to Graduate Business Schools ,2007
