

How to Ask Your Professor for a Letter of Recommendation Via Email

Edited by Marian Irish and 30 others

So, you need a recommendation from a professor for a scholarship? Grad school? A job? If you're making your request via email, follow these steps to do so politely and effectively and get the best possible reference.

Steps

Prepare to send your email request at least 5-6 weeks before the date by which the recommendation must be received. Don't wait until the last minute to ask them. They lead busy lives, and you don't want them to rush through your recommendation, if they can even make the time to write it.

Choose an appropriate professor. Before you choose which professor to ask for a recommendation, ask yourself:

- Does this professor know my name?
- Have I ever spoken to this professor outside of class?
- Did this professor give me a grade of 'B' or higher in the course?
- Have I taken more than one course with this professor?

You want to choose a professor who can write a letter that includes specifics about your personal characteristics or accomplishments rather than "glittering generalities." The more you can answer "yes" to the questions above, the greater the likelihood you're making a wise choice.

Address the letter properly. Even though this is an e-mail, you want it to look nice. If you were on a first name basis (meaning they specifically asked you to call them by their first name and you did so constantly) address it by their first name. Otherwise use their appropriate title. Let's pretend we're writing a letter to Dr. Jones who was your professor for Archaeology. Dr. Jones was not on a first name basis with you, so you will start the letter with, "Dear Dr. Jones" followed by a comma or a colon.

Put "Recommendation for [your name]?" as the subject line.

Start the first paragraph by stating what you want: "I am writing to ask if you would be willing to write a letter of recommendation for me." Do not keep him or her guessing. In the next few sentences, lay out the facts:

- Your name
- Year in school
- Major
- Which course or courses you took with this professor, when, and what grade you earned
- Why you need a recommendation [that is, what you are applying for]
- When the recommendation letter is due

Outline your relationship with the professor in the following paragraph and point out why you have asked him or her specifically. Tell a little about yourself and why you are interested in the scholarship, graduate program, or job for which you need the reference.

- You don't want to use mundane reasons like "I want to work there because they offered the most money" or "I want to go to this school because the degree looks really good on a resume."
- Be professional and say something like, "I chose to apply to this museum because I was extremely excited about their tribal artifacts department."
