Hurst Review Questions

A low income family with children lives in an old, run-down apartment building situated close to a salvage yard in a poor neighborhood. Which area of assessment would be most important for the home health nurse?

1. Immunization status
2. School-related problems
3. Lead poisoning
4. Signs of child abuse - answer      Ans: 3. Lead Poisoning

Lead may be found in the soil around rusted cars and can cause lead exposure. Old paint contains lead. Chips of paint may be consumed by young teething children. Old, run-down apartments may also have pipes which contain lead. Exposure to and consuming even small amounts of lead can be harmful. No safe lead level in children has been identified, and lead can affect nearly every system in the body. Mental and physical development can be negatively impacted by lead in the body.

Which immunizations obtained by the age of two would indicate to the pediatric nurse that the child is up-to-date on immunizations?

1. Diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis (DTaP).
2. Inactivated polio (IPV).
3. Herpes zoster.
4. Meningococcal
5. Haemophilus influenza type B (Hib). - answer      Ans: 1., 2., & 5. Correct: By the age of two, the DTaP, IPV, MMR, Hib, varicella, pneumococcal, and rotovirus vaccines should have been received. The nurse should clarify this with the parent.

Two hours after a gastrectomy, a client has pink tinged drainage from the nasogastric (NG) tube, and the tube appears occluded. What is the nurse's initial action at this time?

1. Call the primary healthcare provider.
2. Reposition the client.
3. Increase the suction level.
4. Irrigate the tube. - answer      Ans: 1. Correct: Do not tamper with fresh surgery tubes. Call the primary healthcare provider for blood draining from the NG tube after gastrectomy.

A client with a history of command hallucinations was admitted to the hospital yesterday. What questions are most important for the nurse to ask?
