Construction Versus Choice in Cognitive Measurement William C. Ward, Randy Elliot Bennett, 2012-10-12 This book brings together psychometric, cognitive science, policy, and content domain perspectives on new approaches to educational assessment, in particular, constructed response, performance testing, and portfolio assessment. These new assessment approaches, a full range of alternatives to traditional multiple choice tests, are useful in all types of large-scale testing programs, including educational admissions, school accountability, and placement. This book's multidisciplinary perspective identifies the potential advantages and pitfalls of these new assessment forms, as well as the critical research questions that must be addressed if these assessment methods are to benefit education.

Test Theory for A New Generation of Tests Norman Frederiksen, Robert J. Mislevy, Isaac I. Bejar, 2012-11-12 The editors of this volume suggest that there are missing elements in the conceptualization upon which standard test theory is based. Those elements are models for just how people know what they know and do what they can do, and the ways in which they increase these capacities. Different models are useful for different purposes; therefore, broader or alternative student models may be appropriate. The chapters in this volume consider a variety of directions in which standard test theory might be extended. Topics covered include the role of test theory in light of recent work in cognitive and educational psychology, test design, student modeling, test analysis, and the integration of assessment and instruction.

Test Equating, Scaling, and Linking Michael J. Kolen, Robert L. Brennan, 2014-01-13 This book provides an introduction to test equating, scaling, and linking, including those concepts and practical issues that are critical for developers and all other testing professionals. In addition to statistical procedures, successful equating, scaling, and linking involves many aspects of testing, including procedures to develop tests, to administer and score tests, and to interpret scores earned on tests. Test equating methods are used with many standardized tests in education and psychology to ensure that scores from multiple test forms can be used interchangeably. Test scaling is the process of developing score scales that are used when scores on standardized tests are reported. In test linking, scores from two or more tests are related to one another. Linking has received much recent attention due largely to investigations of linking similarly named tests from different test publishers or tests constructed for different purposes. In recent years researchers from the education psychology and statistics communities have contributed to the rapidly growing statistical and psychometric methodologies used in test equating scaling and linking In addition to the literature covered in previous editions this new edition presents coverage of significant recent research In order to assist researchers advanced graduate students and testing professionals examples are used frequently and conceptual issues are stressed New material includes model determination in log linear smoothing in depth presentation of chained linear and equipercentile equating equating criteria test scoring and a new section on scores for mixed format tests In the third edition each chapter contains a reference list rather than having a single reference list at the end of the volume The themes of the third edition include the purposes of equating scaling and linking and their practical context data collection designs statistical methodology designing reasonable and useful equating scaling and linking studies importance of test development and quality control processes to equating equating error and the underlying statistical assumptions for equating
