

Applications of Arc Lengths and Sectors

1. A sector of a circle is a region of the circle bounded by a central angle and the intercepted arc.

As you have seen, the arc length s and the area A of a sector are both proportional to the central angle θ subtending the sector, and the complete circle. Thus, there are proportional relationships that would be useful provided that you know that a circle's radius r (given a central angle) and its circumference C (given a central angle) are proportional to the arc length s of a circle of radius r in question.

$$\text{Arc Length} = \frac{\theta}{360} (\text{circumference of circle})$$

Another way to find arc length is to think about unit or unit's relationships. As you recalled that the unit circle in the previous activity, you discovered that arc length is simply a fraction of that circle's circumference, which has been expressed in terms of π . This relationship can be summarized as follows in terms of any given circle, r , below:

$$\frac{\text{Arc Length}}{2\pi r} = \frac{\text{Degrees of Rotation}}{360}$$

Similarly, you discovered a relation that would be useful provided the area swept by a central angle in a circle of radius r is given, A :

$$\frac{\text{Area Swept by Angle of Rotation}}{\pi r^2} = \frac{\theta}{360} (\text{degrees of rotation})$$

As you recalled that for your unit circle's previous activity, you discovered that the arc length s and the area A of a sector are both proportional to the circle's circumference and area, respectively. This relationship is summarized proportionally for a circle of any given radius, r , below:

$$\frac{\text{Arc Length}}{s} = \frac{\text{Degrees of Rotation}}{360}$$

Example: (Based on the original text, see necessary.)

1. In the following three circles below and their sectors, all circles find the arc length and area of each sector.
