

Concepts: Patterns in Triangles

Many more mathematical relationships are produced by the placement of lines parallel to the opposite sides with vertices of triangles. In this section, we will explore some of these relationships.

Students are asked to draw a triangle and a line parallel to one of its sides. They are then asked to draw a second line parallel to the same side of the triangle. They are then asked to draw a third line parallel to the same side of the triangle. They are then asked to draw a fourth line parallel to the same side of the triangle. They are then asked to draw a fifth line parallel to the same side of the triangle. They are then asked to draw a sixth line parallel to the same side of the triangle. They are then asked to draw a seventh line parallel to the same side of the triangle. They are then asked to draw an eighth line parallel to the same side of the triangle. They are then asked to draw a ninth line parallel to the same side of the triangle. They are then asked to draw a tenth line parallel to the same side of the triangle.

1. A line segment is drawn parallel to the base of a triangle. The line segment intersects the other two sides of the triangle. What are the relationships between the line segment and the sides of the triangle? Describe the relationships between the line segment and the sides of the triangle.
