Motion Tracking and Deformation Analysis in Biomechanics Jiaqiu Wang, Zhiyong Li, Chi Wu , Ligu Zhao, Ryan Huang , Ran He, 2025-10-14 Biomechanical analysis has emerged as a powerful tool in clinical diagnosis across various diseases for example cardiovascular diseases cancer and bone diseases Diseased soft tissues such as plaques and tumours exhibit abnormal stiffness and elasticity reflecting changes in deformation and stress strain characteristics Consequently biomechanical characteristics serve as crucial diagnostic evidence in clinical practice With advancements in medical imaging modalities and computational algorithms elastography imaging like ultrasound MR elastography and phase contrast imaging imaging based motion tracking and deformation estimation algorithms like digital imaging correlation DIC and optical flow alongside computational simulation models like finite element analysis FEA offer promising avenues for non invasive and touchless exploration of biomechanical characteristics Despite notable achievements there persists a pressing need for further exploration and refinement of these technologies to enhance their performance improve accuracy and validate their clinical applicability This Research Topic is dedicated to exploring the forefront of computational models and imaging analysis algorithms in biomechanical analysis Our objective is to showcase cutting edge research that encompasses non invasive and contactless technologies methods and algorithms for revealing biomechanical characteristics alongside the application and validation of clinical data Authors are encouraged to submit a variety of article types including Research Case Reports Perspective pieces Systematic or Mini Reviews and Meta Analyses on the following sub topics Elastography imaging technologies and the relevant clinical applications Full field displacement estimation algorithms for example digital image volume correlation DIC DVC and optical flow Feature tracking algorithms and programs Image based stress strain analysis Finite element method FEM and structural analysis in biomechanics Multi physics biomechanical analysis and fluid structural interaction FSI model Advanced theoretical and computational models in biomechanics Motion tracking technology and sports science Stress and strain analysis in mechanobiology Phantom based or specimen based biomechanical test experiments Clinical studies of biomechanics in circulatory system cancer soft tissue blood vessel bone structure etc

Human Movement and Motor Control in the Natural Environment Peter A Federolf, Maurice Mohr, Thorsten Stein, Gert-Jan Pepping, Steven van Andel, Gillian Weir, 2023-06-08 The basic understanding of human movement and control of human movement stems largely from laboratory measurements where human movement can be quantified with high precision and accuracy but where the artificial environment compromises ecological validity A good example for this issue was demonstrated in a recent investigation specifically that the walking gait pattern of healthy individuals in a laboratory changed as a function of how many researchers were present during the experiment Observations like these underscore that study volunteers adapt their behavior to the specific laboratory environment and warrant the question of how well we can transfer our lab based understanding of gait patterns and the underlying neuromuscular control system to walking during daily living Another research area where lab based movement assessments have led to conflicting findings is the field of sports injury prevention Many neuromuscular training programs have been shown to be effective in reducing the sport injury rate in athletes by 30 50% or more in a variety of different multi directional sports Nevertheless lab based assessments of the same athletes who completed those training programs were often not able to detect improvements in motor control of sport specific movements or a reduction in joint loading two factors thought to be closely linked with sport injury risk This disconnect suggests that lab based assessments of movement and motor control are often poor indicators of player behavior during real game scenarios and may limit our ability to screen athletes for injury risk or monitor their progress in rehabilitation These examples highlight that we should strive for the assessment and investigation of human movement and
