

Q 1. Following is a day in the life of Helen Keller. Read the text, and answer the questions that follows. [10]

Extract from "The Story of my Life"

Miss Sullivan slowly spelled into my hand the word "d-o-l-l." I was at once interested in this finger play and tried to imitate it. When I finally succeeded in making the letters correctly, I was flushed with childish pleasure and pride. Running downstairs to my mother I held up my hand and made the letters for doll. I did not know that I was spelling a word or even that words existed; I was simply making my fingers go in monkey-like imitation. In the days that followed I learned to spell in this uncomprehending way a great many words, among them pin, hat, cup and a few verbs like sit, stand and walk. But my teacher had been with me several weeks before I understood that everything has a name.

One day, while I was playing with my new doll, Miss Sullivan put my big rag doll into my lap also, spelled "d-o-l-l" and tried to make me understand that "d-o-l-l" applied to both. Earlier in the day, we had had a good amount of struggle over the words "m-u-g" and "w-a-t-e-r." Miss Sullivan had tried to impress it upon me that "m-u-g" is mug and that "w-a-t-e-r" is water, but I continued in confusing the two. In despair, she had dropped the subject for the time, only to renew it at the first opportunity. I became impatient at her repeated attempts and, taking the new doll, I threw it upon the floor. I was keenly delighted when I felt the parts of the broken doll at my feet. Neither sadness nor regret followed my passionate outburst. I had not loved the doll. In the still, dark world in which I lived there was no strong emotion or a feeling of closeness to anything. I felt my teacher sweep the parts to one side of the fireplace, and I had a sense of satisfaction that the cause of my uncomfortable feeling was removed. She brought me my hat, and I knew I was going out into the warm sunshine. This thought, if a wordless sensation may be called a thought, made me hop and skip with pleasure.
