Kieso, 2013     Financial Accounting Irvin N. Gleim, William Arthur Collins, 1991     Across Conventional Lines: Selected Papers Of George A Olah (In 2 Volumes) George A Olah, G K Surya Prakash, 2003-01-29 In the course of his distinguished career spanning about half a century George A Olah winner of the 1994 Nobel Prize for Chemistry has been exceedingly prolific and has published more than 1000 scientific papers and 15 books and holds more than 100 patents This invaluable volume contains about 250 papers selected for their breadth and current importance     Methane Conversion by Oxidative Processes Eduardo E. Wolf, 1992 A reasonable case could be made that the scientific interest in catalytic oxidation was the basis for the recognition of the phenomenon of catalysis Davy in his attempt in 1817 to understand the science associated with the safety lamp he had invented a few years earlier undertook a series of studies that led him to make the observation that a jet of gas primarily methane would cause a platinum wire to continue to glow even though the flame was extinguished and there was no visible flame Dobereiner reported in 1823 the results of a similar investigation and observed that spongy platina would cause the ignition of a stream of hydrogen in air Based on this observation Dobereiner invented the first lighter His lighter employed hydrogen generated from zinc and sulfuric acid which passed over finely divided platinum and which ignited the gas Thousands of these lighters were used over a number of years Dobereiner refused to file a patent for his lighter commenting that I love science more than money Davy thought the action of platinum was the result of heat while Dobereiner believed the effect as a manifestation of electricity Faraday became interested in the subject and published a paper on it in 1834 he concluded that the cause for this reaction was similar to other reactions     Science Abstracts, 1912     Coalbed Methane F. M. Dawson, 1995 This paper presents a summary of the geological framework of the San Juan and Black Warrior basins the two major coalbed methane producing basins in the United States and provides a geological overview of the potential coalbed methane basins in Canada for comparison Critical geological and production factors are discussed and an assessment of the coalbed methane opportunities in Canada is presented providing a valuable reference for industry to use in future coalbed methane exploration activities     Journal of Gas Lighting, 1926     Methane Conversion by Oxidative Processes Wolf, 2013-11-11 A reasonable case could be made that the scientific interest in catalytic oxidation was the basis for the recognition of the phenomenon of catalysis Davy in his attempt in 1817 to understand the science associated with the safety lamp he had invented a few years earlier undertook a series of studies that led him to make the observation that a jet of gas primarily methane would cause a platinum wire to continue to glow even though the flame was extinguished and there was no visible flame Dobereiner reported in 1823 the results of a similar investigation and observed that spongy platina would cause the ignition of a stream of hydrogen in air Based on this observation Dobereiner invented the first lighter His lighter employed hydrogen generated from zinc and

sulfuric acid which passed over finely divided platinum and which ignited the gas Thousands of these lighters were used over a number of years Dobereiner refused to file a patent for his lighter commenting that I love science more than money Davy thought the action of platinum was the result of heat while Dobereiner believed the effect as a manifestation of electricity Faraday became interested in the subject and published a paper on it in 1834 he concluded that the cause for this reaction was similar to other reactions
