It is much easier to research something and write about it when you know exactly what it is you're trying to write. Look over the assignment carefully to gain a better understanding of what your professor wants from the paper. Ask yourself the following question: What do you want the reader to know after reading this paper? Remember: When you write with a purpose in mind, your paper will have purpose. Make sure you know the goal you're trying to accomplish well and how you can convey the message to your reader.
