Multihomed Communication with SCTP (Stream Control Transmission Protocol) Victor C.M. Leung, Eduardo Parente Ribeiro, Alan Wagner, Janardhan Iyengar, 2012-12-19 Although multihomed communication is a rapidly emerging trend for next generation networks no known book explores multihomed communication with the Stream Control Transmission Protocol SCTP Filling this void Multihomed Communication with SCTP Stream Control Transmission Protocol explains this innovative feature that allows an endpoint to simultaneously maintain and use multiple points of connectivity to the network making it possible for fixed and mobile users to connect to the Internet via multiple service providers or last hop technologies Among the topics addressed the book covers Support of node mobility between networks Concurrent multipath transfer using SCTP multihoming Low delay communication and multimedia applications High performance computing using commodity hardware and software SCTP support in the INET framework and its analysis in the Wireshark packet analyzer SCTP application interface Ideal for researchers and programmers this forward looking reference describes SCTP multihoming concepts and implementation applications of multihoming across different domains and proposed extensions such as multipath transfer and mobility Although the book is aimed at those with an advanced background it also covers the fundamental concepts and mechanisms of SCTP multihoming to help anyone get up to speed on SCTP Language Acquisition in Diverse Linguistic, Social and Cognitive Circumstances Maria Garraffa, Maria Teresa Guasti, Theodoros Marinis, Gary Morgan, 2019-01-24 The language experience of children developing in linguistically diverse environments is subject to considerable variation both in terms of quantity and quality of language exposure It is an open question how to investigate language exposure patterns and more important which factors are relevant for successful language learning For example children acquiring a minority language including a signed language are exposed to less variety of input than children acquiring a more global language This is because they are living in a smaller linguistic community and with fewer occasions to use the language in everyday life Despite this reduced input most native signers are successful language learners In contrast native language competence is not always achieved in signing deaf children with hearing parents or those with cochlear implants learning a spoken language A similar outcome but with very different reasons has also been reported for hearing children with language impairment In these populations acquisition of morphosyntactic aspects is developing atypically ending with an uncomplete linguistic repertoire The circumstances of exposure during language development tend to differ in significant ways with respect to a large number of factors such as i length quality and quantity of input ii social status and attitudes toward the language iii cognitive abilities required for language learning and iv age of first exposure Having early exposure to a range of different speakers is important in the acquisition of any language and may affect language proficiency However negative societal attitudes or a cognitive based disadvantage may create an unfavourable learning environment that prevents language learning from surfacing typically This situation inevitably generates a different type of exposure for the child and consequently different language competence In this Research Topic we intend to encourage the debate on social linguistic and cognitive factors at play for designing an effective environment for language acquisition aiming at integrating linguistic variables coming from theoretical studies on language with environmental variables such as measures of language input or cognitive abilities on functions ancillary to language development
