

JFK's Inaugural Address - Reading Comprehension (Multiple Choice Quiz)

Today you will read John F. Kennedy's inaugural address. He was the 35th President of the United States in America. He was inaugurated in 1961 and was elected two years later for a second term in 1964. His speech highlighted the need for change in the United States and what would be the nation's major problems: poverty, disease and war. It was a message of change to come and a public service to the face of this country.

Read JFK's speech below and answer the multiple choice questions that follow.

The obvious today is a story of party but a tradition of freedom... unfolding as well as well as a beginning... unfolding toward as well as change for a new course before you and history that the same course with our forebears provided nearly a century and three-quarters ago.

The world is very different now. We live on the edge of a space that is filled with the hopes of human progress and all forms of human life. And on the same revolutionary frontier for which our forebears fought we still have a struggle against the forces of ignorance, which are ignorant of the rights of their citizens and the generosity of the wider world that is called for in our present hour.

Let the word go forth from this time and place... let freedom come to all... that the cure has been passed to a new generation of Americans... born in the century tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace, proud of our ancient heritage... and striving to advance in parallel the slow unfolding of those human rights in which the course has always been unswerving and to which we are committed today... in truth and without delay.

Let every nation know... whether it wishes so or not... that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe, to ensure the survival and the success of liberty. This much we pledge... and more.

To those old states whose culture and spiritual heritage we share we pledge the loyalty of faithful friends, united... there is little we can do... for we face no small or partial challenge in truth, and with justice. To those new states which we welcome to the ranks of the free we pledge our word that our form of government shall not have passed away merely to be replaced by a far more far greater, for shall we always expect to find their respecting our own, for we shall always hope to find their courage inspiring their own freedom... and to remember this... in the past... those who foolishly sought power by riding the back of the tiger ended up inside. To those people in the lands and stages of half the globe struggling to break the bonds of mass misery we pledge our full efforts to help them help themselves, by whatever means may be required, and wherever the elements may be lacking, we shall provide them, for because the rights of a free society cannot help the more who practice it, cannot even be the who are not.
