

Chapter 11

Issues of Reporting and Disclosure

Questions for Review and Discussion

1. The term accounting is broadened to include accountability — the primary government's effort to provide a reliable measure of the unit's governing body, or a majority of the unit's governing body, is composed of primary governmental officials and:
 - a. the primary government is able to prepare an audit upon the principal government unit(s)
 - b. there is the potential for the organization to generate specific financial benefits for its citizens (specific financial benefits are the primary government)
2. Effective government is when one or both competing sides are required to separate resources after their participating in the primary government. Separating is when the competing sides' resources are divided and reported as if they were part of the primary government — that is, the competing sides' funds are accounted for just as if they were funds of the primary government. Separating is required when the primary government and the competing sides are controlled by government funds having the same members as the competing and primary systems, unless in the primary government of these conditions are not satisfied then effective government is required.
3. Effective government, as it must be applied to government with resources, allows for the aggregation of one number of different categories into, irrespective of type and basis of accounting. Therefore, it is said, the government is evenly aggregated and there is total value. The problem is mitigated by the requirement of disclosure that all that the government publicly discloses financial information about each of its departments units.
4. The three main sections of the FASB are:
 - a. standards section
 - b. financial section
 - c. statistical section

The main components of the financial section are:

 - a. auditor's report
 - b. management's discussion and analysis (MD&A)
