

Characterization

Characterization means the creation of a fictional character. Characterization can be either direct or indirect. Direct characterization is what the author tells you about a character. Indirect characterization is what you can infer from the characters actions and interactions with other characters.

On the line, write the letter of the sentence that shows direct characterization.

- _____ 1. A Elle called to her brother. She didn't hear anything, so she called again. Surely he would come and help her. He had to!
- B In his room, George heard his sister but ignored her. Stubborn and petty, he was determined to get back at her for the offhand comment she had made about him earlier in the day.
- _____ 2. A Jill is a highly motivated student.
- B Jill wakes early, dresses for school, and logs into her first virtual class five minutes early.
- _____ 3. A Ed was a friendly boy, who liked everyone he met.
- B Ed raised his hand in greeting every time he passed someone on the street.
- _____ 4. A Paula is a very positive person. She believes that your reality is made up of where you place your attention, so she tends to ignore her back pain.
- B Paula's brother watched his sister go about her day as if there were no brace on her back.
- _____ 5. A Mike calls his elderly mother every day.
- B Mike is a kind and thoughtful son.

Aging and Cognitive Processes Fergus Craik,2012-12-06 For a variety of reasons there has been an explosion of interest in research on aging over the past few years The reasons include an awareness that a large and growing proportion of our population is over 65 and that research findings can contribute to their health satisfaction and efficiency as members of society the fact that funding agencies have endorsed the need for more research effort in the area by setting up special programs and also the fact that researchers themselves are turning more to practical problems as many theoretical issues in experimental psychology at least seem to remain as intractable as ever Thus at present there is widespread interest in aging but there is also a lack of knowledge as to what has already been accomplished in the area what the theoretical issues are and what factors contribute to the methodological and practical difficulties The time is propitious for meetings of experts in various aspects of the aging process both to discuss among themselves latest advances in the field and also to integrate known information for researchers and practitioners In the summer of 1980 we organized such a meeting as the 10th annual psychology symposium to be held at the Erindale Campus of the University of Toronto The topic chosen was Aging and Cognitive Processes and the edited contributions to the symposium form the chapters of the present book
