

The Combustion Process (continued)

Secondary air

A factor that affects burner efficiency is the air-to-gas ratio in the burner. Figure 10 shows a burner with a secondary air inlet.

Most gas burners use a mixture of gas and air. The air is drawn into the burner from the surrounding atmosphere. It is not possible to adjust the amount of air that is drawn into the burner. The amount of air that is drawn into the burner is determined by the burner's design and the pressure of the gas.
