Managing Credit Bubbles Alberto Martin,Jaume Ventura,2014-06-09 We study a dynamic economy where credit is limited by insufficient collateral and as a result investment and output are too low In this environment changes in investor sentiment or market expectations can give rise to credit bubbles that is expansions in credit that are backed not by expectations of future profits i e fundamental collateral but instead by expectations of future credit i e bubbly collateral During a credit bubble there is more credit available for entrepreneurs this is the crowding in effect But entrepreneurs must also use some of this credit to cancel past credit this is the crowding out effect There is an optimal bubble size that trades off these two effects and maximizes long run output and consumption The equilibrium bubble size depends on investor sentiment however and it typically does not coincide with the optimal bubble size This provides a new rationale for macroprudential policy A lender of last resort can replicate the optimal bubble by taxing credit when the equilibrium bubble is too high and subsidizing credit when the equilibrium bubble is too low This leaning against the wind policy maximizes output and consumption Moreover the same conditions that make this policy desirable guarantee that a lender of last resort has the resources to implement it

Social Programmes, Poverty Eradication and Labour Inclusion Laís Wendel Abramo, Simone Cecchini, Beatriz Morales, 2019 Diverse social programmes including conditional cash transfer programmes labour and production inclusion programmes and social pensions are being implemented in Latin American and Caribbean countries with the aim of ending poverty and reducing inequalities throughout the life cycle This book offers an up to date analysis of these programmes and the way they relate to labour inclusion and analyses ongoing debates regarding the possible incentives and disincentives they create in terms of the labour supply formalization and child labour among the target population Considering that poverty is a structural problem of highly unequal societies the thesis that poverty is due to a lack of effort on the part of the poor is argued to be an expression of the strong prejudice against those living in poverty the great majority of whom work or are actively seeking employment but are hampered by the large decent work deficits existing in the region From an integrated and rights based perspective public policies should simultaneously address the twofold challenge of social and labour inclusion in order to achieve basic thresholds of well being by ensuring income universal access to good quality social services and opportunities for decent work Biochemistry at Iowa University of Iowa.
